"HEARTS OF ERIN" AT ILLINOIS

AT THE MAJESTIC THIS WEEK

Story of North-west Shown at Colonial Theatre

"Pink Tights," now being shown at the Colonial theatre, is as clever a combination of drama, thrills and comedy as ever enlivened a local screen. The thrills of the circus, the drama that engulfs the life of the little performer and the humor of the small town inhabitants are brightly combined in just the proper proportions for an evening's entertainment.

A thrilling and absorbing story concerning the activities of that famous body of guardians of the law, the royal northwest mounted police, titled "Under Northern Lights," is announced for the Colonial theatre tomorrow and Monday. This latest Universal production was written and supervised by Jacques Jaccard, known throughout the world as the king of thrill directors.

"Under Northern Lights" tells about Douglas MacLeod, a constable in the royal northwest mounted police, who is in love with Suzanne Pouchard, Suzanne's brother, returns from Alaska, where he hit it rich, he yearns for a bit of sport. LaRoque, a professional gambler, loses no time in snaring him into a framed card game, where Jacques' pursa soon diminishes. The young miner discovers he is being cheated and a fight follows. When the excitement is over, LaRoque lies dead on the floor.

In the meantime a young Indian girl, the mother of LaRoque's child, tosses herself to death from a high cliff because of the gambler's refusal to admit the validity of their marriage.

MacLeod, finding the body of LaRoque, faces the painful duty of arresting the brother of the girl he desires to make his wife. He does his duty despite the fact that Suzanne declares she will never see him again.

The subsequent happenings that bring "Under Northern Lights" to a happy ending are tense with dramatic situations and extremely thrilling.

A splendid cast of principals includes Leonard Clapham, Virginia Faire, William Buckley, Oleta Otis, Herbert Bether and many others.

All Feature Acts
Announced on Bill
at Palace Theatre

There is no one special feature at the Palace Sunday but all are features that compose this great holiday bill for four days. Frank DeVoe with a voice that lends itself equally well to jazz and ballads and Harry Hosford, whose ability at the piano is equally pliable, in double harness are pulling a vehicle of fun, music and song described as "Excerpts from Musical Comedy." Mr. DeVoe was principal comedian with Fritz Scheff in "Glorians" and Mr. Hosford was solo pianist with Annette Kellerman. The amusement vehicle which they hail to success in their first double harness is an artistic combination of travesty, songs, chatter and amusement.

Six American Belfords stand as the world's greatest acrobats and have been prominently featured with both the Ringling and Barnum and Bailey circuses and with both of which shows they distinguished themselves. There is created by the Belfords an entirely new epoch in their particular line of gymnastic endeavor, so that the universal praise bestowed on them by dramatic writers and critical observers is not misplaced.

There is always something new at the seashore. If there is any doubt of this fact Hugh McCormick and Grace Wallace will dispel it because their "At the Seashore" is something different. McCormick and Wallace offer a ventriloquist comedy.

Other acts on the bill are Barry and Loyton, the all around boys; Stuart girls, harmony and character singing; Bijou circus, dog and cat gymnastics; and the usual late kinograms and topics of the day.

As a special feature Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the fifth episode of the serial sensation, "King of the Circus," will be shown.

The Palace management announces there will be two shows given New Year's Eve, last performance lasting until midnight.
